

Site Safety Inspection Service

“Allied Safety Services provide a site safety inspection service, assisting managers/supervisors to meet the latest health and safety requirements, by setting and maintaining consistently high standards.”

Full Inspection

Allied Safety Services inspection begins with a review of statutory documentation followed by a physical and visual evaluation of current site activities. Inspections are undertaken with the managers or other authorised person. Our advisors use an ‘arm around the shoulder’ approach rather than simply conducting a policing exercise. Each observation is recorded and allocated a colour rating of red, amber or green, depending on the severity of the problem. Our observations are then discussed with the onsite manager and timescales allocated to resolve the problem areas. The manager/supervisor is then able to prioritise issues and deal with the most urgent matters first.

Monitor Your Performance

Allied Safety Services maintain a proactive inspection service; which assists managers or supervisors to monitor their workplace for health and safety performance. Our team of qualified health & safety advisors are trained to carry out safety inspections on a nationally consistent basis.

Trained Professionals

All of our advisors are highly trained to National Standards to carry out site inspections. This ensures continuity of service and the highest professional standards.

The Report

A site inspection report is sent to the customer within two working days of the inspection having been carried out. The report can be posted or emailed, if preferred. As well as conducting a review of site safety, our advisors also record details of visits made by enforcement agencies and any information about accidents or incidents and their causes.

The site safety inspection service can be carried out in conjunction with other Allied Safety Services.
